PURPLE ISLES ART GUILD

The goal of the Purple Isles Art Guild is to promote an interest in and an appreciation of art, to sponsor educational opportunities for the development of its members' talents, to provide a means for displaying and marketing their work and to encourage new talent.

The guild's annual Members' Judged Art Show, which is usually held in February/March in the community room of the Key Largo Library, is open to the public for nine days and is the highlight of the year. There is also the Joe Cella Birds in Nature show. In addition, we offer open air art shows, plein air painting, teaching videos, and a wide selection of workshops, in different media, with experienced instructors at very competitive prices.

The Guild also has a website with all current information and pictures from various events, and a newsletter, which is published through e-mail during the "season".

Purple Isles helps local schools with art education and supplies, and encourages competitive efforts on their part. Purple Isles Art Guild is at the center of visual art activities in the Upper Keys and is committed to making art a prominent part of the community.
